Where will you go exploring?

From the Editor Tamara Sniffin

Back in the day, I used to love hiking in Colorado and Wyoming. Something is rewarding about getting somewhere with just good old muscle power and self-determination. As much as I enjoy wandering in the woods, exploring a tropical jungle isn't always the most pleasant thing to do. With stifling heat, high humidity, and biting insects, the experience can be close to miserable. Being smart about what time of the year you venture out is a good start, and you can imagine my delight when I figured out that there are places where you can hike AND cool off in delicious river pools at the same time! On our last adventure, we literally pool-hopped along the way when we hiked the Cascade Ally trail in the Mountain Pine Ridge Reserve, and it was delicious! Although the weather and conditions were pleasant, the thought of jumping into cool river water fed by a gushing waterfall was the carrot on the stick, motivating us to move on when the going got tough, and after a refreshing dip, we were ready to tackle the next stretch. Donned in nothing but a swimsuit and hiking boots, we'd venture on to our next plunge and repeat the process. It was grand! As we celebrate the new year, I resolve to find ways to enjoy my passions despite the challenges, like if it's too hot to hike, find a trail with pools along the way! If you enjoy trekking through parts unknown while exploring our gorgeous country, we know just the place to start in My Beautiful Belize! Welcome!

Wolfe's Woofers Tight Skirt

"Hey, Mr. Dennis."

I turned around to see the lovely Tanya, who tends bar at one of Ambergris Caye's best resorts.

"Hi, Tanya," I said. "You're dressed mighty fine for a bus trip."

Tanya and I were standing in a tightly crowded line for the bus from Belmopan to Belize City.

"I had to go to a wedding rehearsal," she said. "I'm gonna' look my best when I'm around a bunch of other bridesmaids."

As I started to board the bus she called, "Save me a seat."

I found a seat and after a while she made her way down the aisle. She did not look happy.

"Are you O.K.?" I asked.

"Yes—I'm just embarrassed. I went to step up on the bus but I couldn't lift my leg because my skirt was so tight. Finally, I reached around and unzipped it a little bit."

"Did that solve the problem?"

"No. I still couldn't reach the bus step so I reached around and unzipped it some more. It still wasn't enough so I tried it again."

"Let me guess," I said. "Did you accidentally unzip it all the way?"

"No, but when I tried again the man behind me grabbed my butt and pushed me up onto the step. I was very angry and I said, 'What do you think you're doing, touching me when I don't even know you?'"

"What did he say?"

"He said, 'Miss, after you unzipped my pants three times, I figured you must know me very well.'"

Heavenly Hiking in the Mountain Pine Ridge Forest Reserve

By Tamara Sniffin

There are many ways to explore our jewel of a country, be it by air, land or sea, the vistas are guaranteed to be beautiful and diverse. If you really want to immerse yourself in all that is Belize, exploring on foot is the ultimate experience. From strolling along a sandy beach to walking through one of our bustling farmers' markets, the sights, sounds and aromas complete the Belizean package, but there is nothing like hiking through our lush jungles and verdant forests. This is how you become one with the very heart of Belize.

One perfect area for hiking is the Mountain Pine Ridge Forest Reserve in the Cayo District of southern central Belize. Established in 1944 to protect and manage native Belizean pine forests, it covers an estimated area of 106,352 acres, with much of it under private lease. The reserve is primarily pine and broadleaf forest with some grass and wetland areas. The Macal River forms the boundaries of the reserve to the west and south and is fed by tributaries including Rio Frio, Rio On, Privassion Creek and Pinol Creek. To the north-east some small streams feed into Barton Creek. Replete with expansive cave systems and countless waterfalls, the area offers hiking opportunities for every level of fitness and adventure.

Where to start? Hidden Valley Inn & Reserve, located within the Mountain Pine Ridge Forest Reserve, boasts close to 90 miles of well-marked and maintained roads and hiking trails. In the past, access to these trails was only available to their guests, but they now permit day hikers to explore the area once they register at the lodge. Guides are available for hire which is great for those who want to learn about the surrounding flora, fauna and maybe do some birding, but the trails are well cared for with ample signage allowing for easy navigating with out one.

Heavenly Hiking

During one visit at Hidden Valley Inn, my co-worker Mary and I first explored the Secret Falls and Pools. A popular spot for romance, we imagined how fun the area would be if we were there with our husbands instead of each other, but still managed to enjoy a bottle of wine while taking in the lovely waterfall and river pool. The following day was a more challenging hike to Butterfly Falls led by our able guide Marvin, where the 80-foot waterfall cascades into a crystal-clear pool. A perfect swimming hole after a hot and sweaty hike, the cool waters instantly revived us! Several months ago, on a return visit, my hubby and I ventured solo one day exploring the Lake Trail. Our two-hour hike, which started from the lodge, took us along a babbling creek and past citrus and coffee groves until we reached the picturesque Lake Lolly Folly. It was a great place to birdwatch and relax under a shady tree. But our Cascade Ally hike the next day has to be my favorite journey yet!

Named for the dozens of waterfalls you pass along the trail, Cascade Ally takes you through an obstacle course of rustic steeples, bridges and even ladders crafted from felled trees. We start from Beverly's Lookout so that we walk facing the cascades. The hilly trail traverses along and over countless streams and swimming holes bearing names like Molly's Dip and Ofelia's Tub. There's even a place along the trail where a sign reads "Alia and Ben got engaged here", and I can see how the area could inspire such a proposal! Our day is spent climbing and balancing over makeshift bridges that appear rustic but are solidly constructed, with the highest Sky Bridge an impressive network of planks. The adventure reminds me of a primitive jungle gym of grownups! Although the trail is just short of two miles long the hilly terrain and warm, humid temperature makes it feel much longer. We cool off in a couple of the inviting pools along the way and marvel at having the entire trail and forest to ourselves, save for the tropical birds and occasional Blue Morpho butterfly that flutter by.

There are dozens of trails to choose from and Hidden Valley Inn has a complete list of them along with distances and level of difficulty. As an early sexagenarian whose level of fitness leaves something to be desired, some of these hikes left me breathless at times, but were very doable if going at your own pace, and nothing makes you feel younger than accomplishing something you weren't sure you were up for.

Reel fun fishing in Belize...so many ways!

By Janelle Cowo

"Gone fishing," is a phrase often heard across Belize. Who can blame us when the beautiful and bountiful Caribbean Sea is at our doorsteps?! Whether you are looking to catch the big one for dinner or want to have some fun out at sea, fishing in Belize is a must.

I may not be the best fisher myself, but as an island girl at heart, I sure do enjoy a day out at sea. With a dad who makes a living from fishing and many friends whose favorite hobby is casting a line, I have spent quite a bit of my time out on a boat. And even though fishing is not on the top of my to-do list, I do find it to be a very fun past time. There is really no right way to fish, what works for one may not work for another and there are so many ways to fish.

Fishing is so popular that it has gone from beyond a means of getting food to a form of entertainment and for us in the tourism industry, a way of life. What can you expect when fishing in Belize? Here are some of the many ways you can enjoy this top activity while visiting our country.

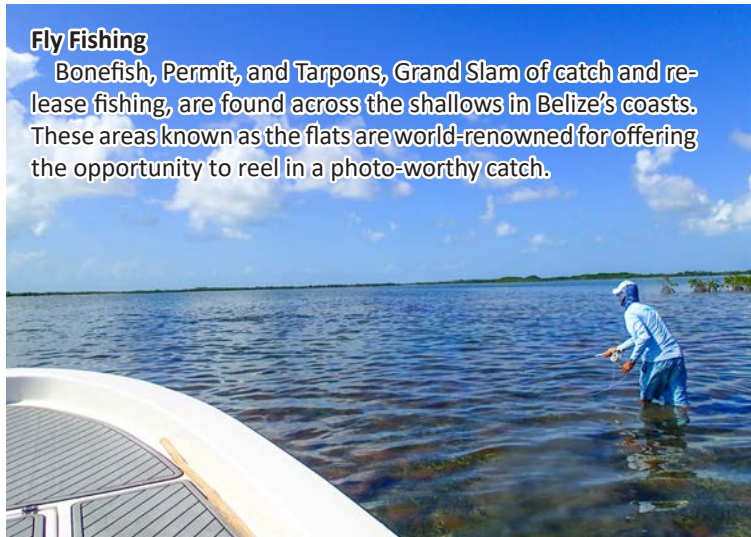

Reef Fishing

Arguably the most popular form of fishing in Belize, reef fishing is fun and relaxing. A day out on a boat over the calm waters inside the Barrier Reef, Reef Fishing is best done with a beer in hand. Snappers and Jacks are a common catch and best of all, whatever you catch makes for a delicious meal later that day.

Fly Fishing

Bonefish, Permit, and Tarpons, Grand Slam of catch and release fishing, are found across the shallows in Belize's coasts. These areas known as the flats are world-renowned for offering the opportunity to reel in a photo-worthy catch.

Spear Fishing

With today's folks giving more importance to conservation, spearfishing is considered by many the most sustainable form of fishing. Through this method you can choose the fish you want to catch reducing the risk of harming those ever importance protected species. You best be a good diver as Spear Fishing isn't for everyone. It requires great endurance and stamina as you often have to dive down several meters before you can land that perfect catch.

Deep-sea Fishing

Thrill seeker look no more! For those looking to catch that prized tuna or sailfish, it's time to venture beyond the Barrier Reef to deeper waters and a bit rougher sea. Prepare your best tackle and be ready for a fight, the big fish of the deep sure give a fight and this form of fishing very exciting!

Whatever your favorite form of fishing may be, remember always to be accompanied by a licensed fishing guide knowledgeable of Belizean waters. There are several protected marine reserves where it is illegal to fish and other marine species are protected. For more information on the regulations surrounding fishing in Belize visit <http://www.fisheries.gov.bz/>

Comfort food at its best at Island Wonder kitchen + bar

By Janelle Cowo

Imagine dining on a comforting meal while sipping a mimosa and ending it off with a little sweet treat – sounds like just the right meal, wouldn't you say? Recently, our adventures in dining led us to Island Wonder kitchen + bar, the newest restaurant on Coconut Drive here in San Pedro Town. Just a few yards south of Tropic Air's San Pedro Terminal, Island Wonder is serving up all manner of comfort food. Catering to the island's hungry crowd, this cute, fully air-conditioned restaurant is an undiscovered jewel.

My friends all know that I love brunching, and I'm constantly in search of that ideal spot that will serve me some good eats alongside my cocktails. Island Wonder offers a full breakfast and lunch menu to eat in, take out or have delivered. One of their top-selling breakfast items is the stuffed fry jack, a Belizean classic. Puffy fried dough stuffed with scrambled eggs, bean, and cheese sure sound like what I need to start off the day. A pancake platter is also a great option – three to an order, served with crispy bacon, syrup, and fruit - simply divine!

Be sure to try Island Wonder's chicken fried steak topped with gravy and a side of fried okra and corn soufflé... yum! The golden fried locally sourced steak cuts like butter, making for the ideal lunch or dinner option.

But I have got to give props to Island Wonder's chicken and dumplings. This classic stew took my taste buds on a fantastic ride down memory lane. Served with garlic bread, you just won't be able to stop eating once you start. Did I mention the mimosas I had? Those were good too!

No good meal is complete without something sweet, and Island Wonder has that covered too. How does a Chocolate Waffle Bowl with Ice-cream and topped with their signature Salted Caramel Bourbon Pecan Sauce sound? I'd say, 'sounds like dessert heaven!'

With the addition of a kids' menu, Island Wonder is the perfect spot for families. They'll even provide some coloring books and crayons for the little ones to keep them entertained while you sip on that second (or third) cocktail.

Most exciting is the upcoming addition of a drive-thru. Yes, you heard right – take-out food has never been easier! Be sure to follow them on Facebook and Instagram @islandwonderbelize for daily specials and delivery options. Whether you're last or first stop while on Ambergris Caye, drop by from Monday to Saturday between 9AM to 5PM for a meal you won't soon forget. For orders or reservations, contact them at 501-601-5048.

Flying to and around Belize

By Mary Gonzalez

When the New Year hits, we often find ourselves making plans and promises – resolutions if you will. It seems the biggest one is to ‘Travel More,’ and we agree! Even here in Belize, we promise to get out and explore more of what the jewel has to offer. We can only imagine how our friends feel as they brave snow, frigid temperatures and generally gray days, plotting their next getaway to our sunny islands, warm rainforests and chill jungle getaways.

Thankfully, we are easily accessible through various airlines from 19 cities and seven countries.

From Latin America & Mexico:

Avianca: San Salvador; COPA: Panama City; TAG: Guatemala City; Tropic Air: Cancun, Flores, Guatemala City & Roatan

From USA & Canada:

Air Canada: Toronto; American Airlines: Miami, Dallas, Charlotte, and Los Angeles; Delta Airlines: Atlanta; Southwest: Houston (Hobby), Fort Lauderdale and Denver; Sun Country: Minneapolis; United Airlines: Houston (IAH), Chicago and Newark; Westjet: Calgary and Toronto

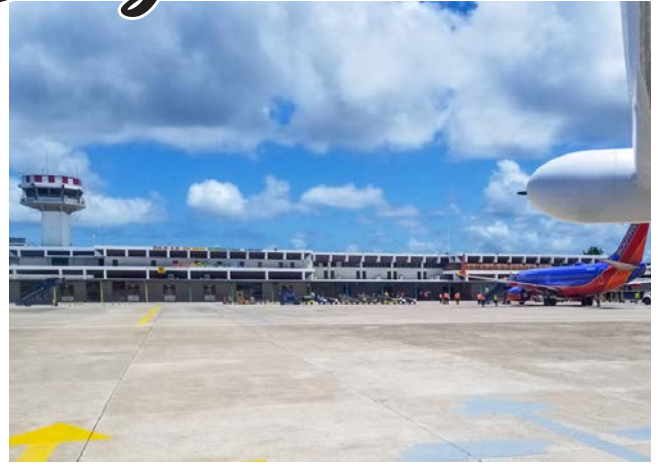

All international flights land at the Philip SW Goldson International Airport, from where your Belize adventures begin!

Getting around with Tropic Air

Our awesome partner airline is Tropic Air, and they count with the most domestic flights (as well as international). They recently celebrated 40 years of service, and in those four decades, have truly grown and evolved as the Airline of Belize.

From the international airport, you can fly direct to your Belize destination of choice. The Culture Capital Dangriga? The Placencia Peninsula? How about unspoiled Punta Gorda? Maybe you're feeling the rainforest vibes of the Cayo District – either Belmopan or Maya Flats. The Maya Flats flight gives you a killer view of the Xunantunich Maya Archaeological Site as you head in towards their landing strip – an added bonus!

Of course, you can visit us on Ambergris Caye, or check out our sister island, the chill and relaxed Caye Caulker (we like her a lot – she's a real beauty!) Tropic can also take you to the northern districts of Orange Walk (just not on weekends) and Corozal. Each place has its own attractions and appeal, and you'll be guaranteed to have fun getting to know all of Belize.

Once you've landed in Belize, the possibilities are truly endless. We're a tiny country but have lots to offer and you're in excellent hands exploring via our friends at Tropic Air. To learn more, visit their website at www.tropicaire.com.

A Belizean Care Package: What do your taste buds miss the most from Belize?

While I love traveling, I have never considered moving away from my homeland. I can't see myself living anywhere but Belize – there is just too much that I love from our little Caribbean jewel. I often ask friends who have moved to a different country or are studying abroad what they miss the most about living in Belize, and while the first answer is almost always family, what often follows is food. I can't blame them; I sure do love my Belizean food too. Their longing goes beyond the traditional dishes however, and often extends to the ingredients found so easily in Belize that they can't get easily wherever they are.

We grow up surrounded by all these flavors unique to the different cultures across the country. Belizean dishes can usually be recreated anywhere, with the right ingredients. To this day, I still remember my grandmother buying only one certain brand of red recado, insisting that any other would change the flavor of her meals. It is these little, perhaps peculiar, traditions we grow up with that make it challenging to cook our classic Belizean meals in any other country.

My friends living abroad say, "When we miss the tastes from home, that's when we need our Belizean Care Package!"

But what is a Belizean Care Package? It's mostly food and ingredients we easily find at our corner store here in Belize, but to my friends living abroad, these simple items sent by family can be lifesavers!

So, what are in these care packages? It all depends on the food one grows up loving to eat and their cultural background. However, there are some essential items that are a must-have in every Belizean Care Package. For starters, the best way to say you care to a Belizean living abroad is by sending them some good ole Marie Sharp Pepper Sauce – we love our spicy food and while Marie Sharp is found on international shelves, it is only available in select stores. Also making the list is local rums and spirits - after all, you can't find Traveller's Belizean rum just anywhere. One of the more, may I say, strange items we seem to can't get enough is Happy Cow soft cheese (used in our signature cheese dip) and Dutch (Edam) cheese; you would think that something we import would be easier to find abroad, but that just isn't the case. Throw in some local spices (like Sazón Completa and recado) and you will make any Belizean living away from home a happy camper!

If you are a Belizean living abroad or just know someone who loves Belizean cuisine, send us your dream Belizean Care Package list to hello@mybeautifulbelize.com ; who knows, we may just be able to fulfill your dream.

STICK TO YOUR GOALS WITH THE FITTEST WOMAN IN BELIZE!

By Mary Gonzalez

Not one to shy away from competition, Liliana has taken on challenges in Mexico.

January – the month that sees the firmest of resolutions to get and stay fit. With the promise to travel more, staying fit while traveling can have its challenges. Gone are the days we go nuts on vacation, forgetting all about our fitness plans and indulging left, right and center. A bit more health-conscious, we tend to gravitate towards a gym or fitness class, getting a little health in before we have our first Belikin or beach barbecue. Maybe you feel like working off the fry jacks and meat pies, or you have some goals you want to stick to - we don't judge – in fact, thanks for the inspiration!

One fun thing about our island home is that it has a wide variety of fitness centers for you to choose from. We highlight one person, however, because we think it's amazing to say she is the 'Fittest in Belize'!

Liliana Nuñez is a CrossFit Coach, athlete and fitness enthusiast. A fitness professional for ten years, Liliana began with her Personal Trainer certification from the National Personal Training Institute. She also has her Level 1 CrossFit Trainer and Mobility certification. She coaches at one of only two affiliated boxes in Belize, CrossFit Wolf in the San Pedro area of Ambergris Caye. Liliana and crew have made it their mission to spread knowledge and skills to those who seek it.

Being part of the CrossFit industry means being part of its global sense of community, and so it is easy to fit in, wherever in the world one may be. "I am proud of my accomplishments in CrossFit. It's a full-time job which I love and have a passion for...it's changed my life, not only as an athlete but as a human being," says Liliana. "Fitness is a lifetime journey...coaching and personal training give joy to my life. It's my members and trainees that motivate me to keep going every single day!"

Visitors enjoy a quick sweat session in paradise!

We have enjoyed watching Liliana's journey as well, and are particularly proud of her latest accomplishment, being named Fittest in Belize 2020. Having done extremely well during the worldwide CrossFit Opens - a challenge that tasks athletes to do their best and compete with people all over the world, Liliana managed to take the top spot after five brutal fitness tests. Participants not only battle for the title of 'Fittest' in their country but for the second year in a row, have the distinction of qualifying for the highly anticipated CrossFit Games. Liliana is Games-bound, ready to face a couple of hundred other elite athletes to see if she can be named Fittest in the World. That challenge is coming up the week of July 29th through August 2nd in Madison, Wisconsin.

Imagine you're on vacation and happen to drop in on a class being taught by the Fittest in Belize? It can happen, so stick to those resolutions, and when in Belize, drop by any of the fitness centers around town, and you just might run into the lovely Liliana! Check out CrossFit Wolf's schedule on their Facebook Page.

You can also check out Train Station Fitness Center, Belize Fitness (Liliana also does some personal training at this center), CrossFit San Pedro Town, and San Pedro Barbell to get your sweat on.
